

Environmental Statement

Falcon operates in an environmentally and socially responsible manner at all worldwide operations and takes great care to insure similar standards from our vendor partners. Our Corporation's manufacturing facilities continuously reduce waste, minimize our carbon footprint, and use recycled and recyclable materials. Here are just a few specific examples of the many initiatives which insure that we remain responsible employers, respected members of the communities where we operate, and continuously improve our stewardship of the planet's resources:

The majority of our wood products feature FSC hardwoods and we can supply formaldehyde free substrates, bio based foam or linoleum components to any customer who wishes to earn additional LEED points for their project.

Powder coat paint over spray is reclaimed for reuse. Our corrugated material is 46% recycled.

In 2009 our production facility in Europe was certified ISO14001 compliant, requiring some of the most rigorous environmental standards in the world. Over the past 35 years our state of the art North American metal casting foundry has recycled engine components from more than 50 million automobiles to make table bases. These bases can in turn be safely recycled at the end of their useful life. We use mostly recycled aluminum, steel, and iron for our metal parts.

However, there are some fundamental principles which have guided Falcon's business and which avoid the environmental, social, and reputational hazards of the many 'throwaway' products which flood our market today. Falcon is a responsible manufacturer of high quality, comfortable, and classic furniture designs. All of our employees are proud of the fact that we provide exceptional value, years of trouble free comfort, and an exceptionally low total cost of ownership. Falcon will continue to adhere to these fundamental principles, which have served us well for more than 60 years of operation.
